

Recently I heard that some of my classmates were planning on marching in full Trump paraphernalia in the P-rade. Clearly, I found this offensive but I had learned that the cure for offensive speech was free speech so I suggested that some of us begin the P-rade with the banner described below.

In addition, we could wear

This seemed to upset a few people:

IMFTA (sic), meaning what, Mr. Porter?

"IMPEACH THE MOTHERFUCKER ALREADY!" ???

Do you really think that makes a contribution to any constructive dialogue, discussion, or policy development?

Or is amusing?

Hey Bro, I do not find it amusing at all.

While I do not expect any IMFTA proponent to care a damn about my own views or feelings on the subject, I do want you to know that I find your banner in extremely bad taste.

OMG! Bad Taste. What about taking health care away from people. What about pulling out of the climate change agreements? What about not caring about the people in Puerto Rico (Is that really part of the US?) What about easing emission standards? What about not protecting our electoral system from Russian hackers now that we have proof what happened in 2016? .....

That's what I find in really bad taste!
